Alternative medicine is experiencing a dramatic rise in popularity, both from those who seek to be healed by it and those who wish to practice it. Information on alternative treatments and advice is abundant; however, information for those seeking education, training, and accreditation in this area has previously been scarce. The Directory of Schools for Alternative and Complementary Medicine is the first book of its kind to provide a comprehensive listing of nearly 700 schools in the U.S. and Canada that offer certification and degrees in alternative medicine. Additionally, nine essays by authorities and visionaries in the field provide unique insight and practical guidance to anyone interested in pursuing these increasingly popular professions.
