Reclaiming Western Cultures Simon Lennon

If the West believes in a multicultural world and that all races and cultures are equal, we'll do what other races do. We'll reclaim our cultures.

We'll adopt a nationalistic multiculturalism like that outside the West, in the few countries there with multiculturalism. We'll respect other races retaining their cultures but assert in our countries the primacy of not just indigenous cultures, but ours too.

Only the postmodern West separates religion from culture and them both from race. That is, unless we're worrying about cultural appropriation.

For centuries, Christianity underpinned Western sciences, arts, and the rest of our cultures, including the Renaissance and Enlightenment, without everyone sharing the faith. We don't need to be religious to want to live in a Christian West, safeguarding our rights to choose what we think and do.
