Most rational people can agree to the fact that time and space are relative. The same could be said about love and romance. Hilary Palmer isn't like most rational people. She lives by a different set of rules than the rest of the world. Hilary has near limitless power as the universe's last stand against irregularities in space and time, but there's always a toll to pay for such control. She is not allowed to fall in love. Correction, she can fall in love, but the universe just won't let it stick. Now the Van Allen file has gone missing and the integrity of the space time continuum is in jeopardy. Will her team of new friends and old loves be able to restore order before it's too late? Doomed love, duels to the death, an evil twin and pie. What more could you ask for?
